How will this contribute to improving health and wellbeing in Doncaster?
The attached report outlines some of the potential challenges facing adult social care over the next 15 years. The report shows that Doncaster has an ageing population but also has a population that has lower 'disability free life expectancy'. Doncaster men and women are living longer with disability than many similar areas and with greater disability will come greater demand on social care services. The report then presents the potential increases in demand for social care that could result from an increasingly ageing population. The trajectories described in this report should be regarded as predicting demand if no changes were made in the commissioning and delivery of social care services.

Recommendations

The Board is asked to:- Consider the potential impacts of an aging population on adult social care.
